

Taking College Courses with Pearson Accelerated Pathways

Courses make up the core of your experience as a college student. Whether you attend a campus, enroll online, or choose a flexible option like Pearson Accelerated Pathways, the one thing that will never change is the fact that you need to take 40 courses to graduate. (That's equal to 120 credits—the requirement for a standard bachelor's degree.)

So if you want a customized college experience, you need flexible courses—ones that can fit around your life instead of forcing you to plan your life around college.

That's what Pearson's catalog of fully flexible courses allows you to do.

Study when you want, where you want

Traditional classroom-based courses require you to show up to campus multiple times a week. Homework is due on a schedule set by the instructor. Online courses from traditional colleges follow a similar format; just replace the classroom with online discussion boards.

Our courses allow you to design your own study schedule. There's only one deadline: finish the course. You'll have plenty of work to do along the way—readings, activities, quizzes, and tests—but you get to decide when and where you complete it. Just finish within the 8-week window.

24/7 access to Degree Manager

Once you purchase your course, you can easily navigate to it through Degree Manager—your online college portal. Degree Manager helps you know which courses to take and in what order. It helps you register for new courses with the click of a button, keep track of your grades, and even includes step-by-step instructions for transferring your hard-earned credit once you finish a course.

Degree Manager is your central hub for anything you'll need to do while earning your degree through Pearson Accelerated Pathways.

An attractive course platform

All of our courses are hosted through Canvas, a beautiful and easy-to-use course platform that helps you stay on track with your studies. This is where you'll do the actual studying. You'll find clear study instructions, textbook readings, quizzes, tests, and even your updated grade as you turn in assignments. And if you need extra support, our Student Services department can answer any questions you have.

Included eTextbook

With our courses, there's no need to spend extra time and money purchasing a textbook that you'll only read once. Our courses come with an eTextbook included with the purchase of your course. No hidden fees or extra charges. This way, we take care of all the details for you, so you can spend your time focusing on what's important: earning your degree.

Subjects for any degree

While our courses are especially helpful for liberal arts students (students whose degrees focus on studying a broad range of topics rather than delving deeply into a single field), they're a great fit for almost any degree. Use our courses to complete your general education requirements, fill in your free electives, or even take some of the introductory courses required by your major (depending on which major you choose).
